The Power of Engaging Stakeholders

Better Policy

Improved Services

Stronger Community

Thursday 21 February 2008

9.30am to 5pm (registration from 9am)

Sydney Room, The Menzies Hotel, 14 Carrington Street, Sydney

The International Association for Public Participation (IAP2) Australasia is hosting an exciting one day symposium to bring together eminent International IAP2 practitioners and local experts in policy development and service delivery.

They will challenge current thinking around stakeholder engagement and share their experiences of achieving outcomes in:

Better Policy- Designing robust policy options and avoiding the pitfalls of reacting to biased media, short term interests or vocal minority groups

Service Delivery- Getting the right services to the right people when they need it- how to ensure that services meet needs and aspirations

Building Social Capital- Recognising the power of the community to take ownership of the outcomes, with an emphasis on how engagement with the traditionally less well represented can foster a spirit of community and contribute to robust policy, quality service and ownership.

The focus areas will include: Health, Communications, Transport, Public Housing, Education and Community Development. However the challenges, insights and experiences will be applicable to all areas of public policy.

Come and:

- † be challenged by thinking from different perspectives
- † understand how to develop more effective policy/ governance practices by collaboration, tapping into client needs
- † learn how, by engaging more effectively with colleagues and stakeholders, you become a better leader
- † explore some alternative approaches, both here and overseas

The seminar will include a diverse cast of international speakers from UK, France, Canada, USA and NZ as well as prominent local practitioners to provide a diversity of perspectives and experiences. It will coincide with the first Sydney meeting of the IAP2 International Board

The event is designed to encourage the active participation of all attending, with opportunities to both listen and contribute.

Wine and canapés will be provided at the conclusion of the day. Participants are encouraged to stay on and network with our international guests.
